Journal of Management and Decision Sciences (ISSN:2617-7625) is a peer-reviewed international journal which is focusing on publishing the finest research on management decision making.

The Journal focuses on theoretical, empirical and methodological investigations of managerial decisions that drive business productivity and success. Such research can be methodologically focused on quantitative approaches, on qualitative methods, or can take the form of insightful reviews and commentaries on best practices in business research.

The Journal dedicates itself to the interdisciplinary investigation of managerial decision making in the recognition that important managerial decision making takes place in a range of critical business areas, including but not limited Accounting, Economics, Finance, Information Systems, International Business, Tourism Management, Logistics and Supply Chain, Strategic Management, Marketing, Operations and Production. We are particularly interested in Analytics as an emerging synthesis of sophisticated methodology and large data systems used to guide managerial decision making in an increasingly complex business environment.

We solemnly promise that there is no publication fee for the Journal. We sincerely invite scholars to submit your manuscript to Journal of Management and Decision Sciences by E-mail: jomdseditting@hotmail.com.
